It pulls together insights both from professionals and victim-survivors. The report grapples with the difficult question of whether the impact of domestic abuse should be reflected in the final division of the parties’ finances. It recognises that there are a wide range of views about that issue and does not make a final recommendation in that regard. However, it recommends a number of changes that can be made from the moment the parties have separated until a final court order is enacted to make the journey safer and fairer for victim-survivors. Resolution hopes to work with other stakeholders, senior judiciary and policymakers to co-operate around implementing the recommendations in 2025.” The launch event will take place today from 5pm to 6pm, at 4PB.
