

Andrew Powell speaking at Annual JUSTICE Human Rights Conference.

7th October 2021

The Annual JUSTICE Human Rights Conference returns over Zoom on 11th and 12th October. Our very own Andrew Powell joins a panel speaking on Family and Children Rights.

Don't miss this incredible opportunity to hear from leading lawyers and renowned jurists, stay up-to-date on the latest developments in human rights, and earn nine CPD hours. Following an opening keynote address by Harold Hongju Koh, Sterling Professor of International Law at Yale Law School, and review of the year, you will take part in two break-out sessions before hearing our fireside chat and closing debate on "Covid-19 and Human Rights".

This year our panels will explore: Crime, Housing and Homelessness, Immigration and Asylum, Family and Child Rights, Protest as a Human Right, and Judicial Review. You can find out more about each session here. All delegates will receive access to recordings of each panel.

Tickets are £100 for JUSTICE members / £150 non-members. Book your ticket online and support the work of JUSTICE.
